

SEPTEMBER NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS MONTH

Prepared Communities Are Stronger Communities!

Emergencies can affect more than one household, they can impact entire neighborhoods and communities. Staying connected, sharing reliable information, and looking out for one another helps us respond and recover together.

This week, take time to:

- Check in with a neighbor, friend, or family member.
- Share trusted emergency information and resources.
- Know how you will stay connected if normal communication methods are disrupted.
- Think about who in your community may need additional support during an emergency.
- Learn about local alerts, resources, and emergency information available in your community.

A connected community is a more prepared community.

Community Connection Is Preparedness:

When we stay connected, we strengthen our ability to support one another when it matters most.
